

Latino Health 2: Latino Community Engagement CBHS 6655 2 CREDITS SPRING 2025

Why choose this class:

This graduate level hybrid course is offered during the Spring semester and focuses on:

- Community-based participatory research and engagement principles for addressing health disparities and health equity in the Latino Community.
- Latino community expert-led sessions integrating interactive discussions.
- Immersive experience in the Latino Community.

Core Competencies:

1) MPH 19: Communicate audience-appropriate public health content, both in writing and through oral presentation

2) MPH-CBHS 7: Effectively engage and collaborate with communities in an equitable and ethical manner, including developing a work plan, communicating effectively and disseminating results.

Student Testimonial

"[This class] prepares students to find solutions for the health disparities that exist in the Latinx community today... I have never seen a course where we have professors/presenters that look like me [and] are doing the work I wish to do one day."

Immersive experience

- 3-4 days of in-person* immersion in the Latino community to understand various aspects of culture.
- Integration online sessions to allow for reflection and integration of theoretical and experiential knowledge.

Community Engagement

Implementation and community eEngagement methodology taught by local experts and leaders to provide a practical and hands-on experience.
